

Russell King brings more than 30 years of nonprofit experience to TREE Fund, including more than 20 in fundraising and as a CEO. He holds a bachelor's degree in journalism and a master's in business administration. Russell was editor of a peer-reviewed scientific journal, a columnist for Huffington Post and several newspapers, the author of five books, and the recipient of state and national awards for essay and poetry writing. His personal time is typically spent enjoying his family, reading, meditation, weightlifting, fishing, writing, music, and the outdoors. His community service includes holding elected office, serving on numerous boards, and coaching nearly 40 youth sports teams. Russell is a native of Michigan and a 35-year resident of Wisconsin who now calls Naperville, IL, home. You can find his full resume on the TREE Fund website.